Re: Williams Seeks Public Input

As you may be aware, Williams operates a natural gas transmission pipeline in your area known as Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line (Transco), which provides about 25 percent of the natural gas consumed in Virginia. You are receiving this letter because our existing pipeline right of way crosses or is adjacent to your property.

Williams has received requests from customers to deliver an additional 165 million cubic feet natural gas by November 2007 (enough gas to fuel the equivalent of 700,000 homes and businesses). We are in the preliminary stages of designing an expansion of our pipeline facilities to meet these requests.

This proposal is currently in the planning phase, Williams anticipates the project will require adding approximately 20 miles of new 42-inch pipeline that will parallel the company's existing mainline system in Pittsylvania and Campbell counties, Va., and replace a portion of pipe in Fairfax county, Va. The final facility design, location and other details have not yet been finalized and a formal application has not yet been filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), however, we have requested that the FERC initiate a pre-application environmental review of the proposed expansion. The FERC has assigned the project the pre-filing document number (PF06-2).

Before we finalize the project design, we want to give all interested stakeholders an opportunity to review the study area and provide suggestions. Your input is important to us. The comments gathered during this planning phase will help to shape our final proposal. We anticipate finalizing the project proposal and filing a formal application with the FERC in the summer of 2006. Therefore, we encourage you to attend one of the following three scheduled public workshops:
